DER OF C. R. THOMPSON.

circumstances of the horrible murder of an citizen in the Court House at Lexington, Ky. are thus related by a cor- of the Lexington Enquirer.

ised to-day, the most tragic scene ev- t in a Court House, in the murder of distinguished townsman, Clifton R. Thompson Daniel. A suit had been brought on against Daniel at the last March term and procured a continuance of the verbal statement until the September term he was again but was compelled to give a written setting forth the ground upon which to get a continuance. The case was

To-day the case was called, and heard with another affidavit for an- nuance. This so provoked Thomson requested his counsel to permit him the affidavit, which contained much abuse of himself. In his answer son was remarkably courteous and until he came to the ungentlemanly his having swindled his sister, (Dan-upon a distance of one hundred and sixteen miles; Concord, N. H. to Provincial line 33, 272 m., upon distance of one hundred and six- ty-one miles. The increase on the Eastern route since 1840 is much greater than the interior route, and the towns on the eastern route are much superior on account of the business they would furnish the road and are among the best and most thriving towns in western Maine.

The last new Railroad project is one from the Atlantic road to the Kennebec, via Lewiston Falls, which is a port of great value for manu- facturing purposes. All of these Maine routes will be as profitable as the roads of Massachusetts, Vermont and New Hampshire. The people along the projected lines are as able to sup- port the lines as are those of other parts of New England, and the only serious obstacle is a point of sufficient capital in the large towns to take the stock. Rival interests may delay the works, but there never can be in this country a lack of those who are ready to furnish the means to build works of interest improvement that pro- vide a liberal return to investors."

MILLERISM. Since the trial of Elder Dam- mon at this place, the Millerites have kept up their meetings continually, in Atkinson, adjoining this town. Fourteen persons, male and female, were baptised on Sunday night last—and a number of them have been re-baptized from four to six times. Their presiding elder or leader was formerly a sea captain pretty tonguey man, as we are informed, and has a family in Exeter. It is an lamentable fact that so deluded are some of them that they have neglected all kinds of business, and refuse to labor, or provide for the maintenance of their families—which are liable eventually, to become a town charge, unless the selectmen, in their wisdom, immediately intertere.
